RECEIVED

Notification Under 37 C.F.R. §1.28(c) OCT 5 1987

Sir:

GROUP 120

Applicants submit herewith a check in the amount of $455, which is the deficiency between the amounts paid in the prosecution of the application and the amounts due as a large entity. Although this application is owned by the individual inventors, and their employer, Integrated Genetics, Inc., is a small entity and the licensee is a small entity, the licensee is an affiliate of a large entity, Serono Laboratories, Inc. The error claiming small entity status, which occurred almost four years ago, is believed by the undersigned to have occurred because the assignee and licensee are both small entities, and it is only the European parent company of the licensee which is a large entity. The error was discovered in July, 1987, when the patent attorney for the European parent company called a meeting to review the status of applications in which his employer had rights.
